A GREAT TUNNEL .- The Baltimore Patriot states that the altimore and Ohio Railroad, between Harper's Ferry and emberland, will probably be completed in the ensuing year. With reference to the great tunnel, the Patriot says:

During the last mouth, the tunnel at the Doe Gully notch which at one time was supposed to present the greatest oble to the speedy compl and to end so thoroughly as to allow a carriage to be driven through it. This tunnel (which is twelve hundred feet long, and excurated in the solid rock throughout) was commenced about the 1st of June, 1840, and carried through in little re than twelve months, by the men working night and day. We learn from a friend that, during a recent jaunt which he made to this magnificent work, (it is only twelve miles from Berkeley Springs,) he was struck with the almost mathematcal accuracy of its outline, its appearance at a short distance being as regular as if it were cut out of a plastic clay, while the material, in fact, around and overhead, is as solid as marble.

Correspondence of The Tribune.

WESTON, Mass, July 10, 1841. DEAR SIR :- I had a delightful trip on that best and most comfortable of all boats, the Worcester, on which every one should journey when coming through the Sound, if they lave vide, clean berths, and excellent eating accommodations, and have been traveling about in Middlesex and Norfolk Counties since my arrival. The crop of hay is not very beavy. Corn looks well. Apples are likely to be as plenty

In illustration of the necessity of an uniform currency, I wish to detail my 'experience' in one or two little affairs of dollars and cents; being in haste before I left New-York, I neglected to procure New-England money, and was supplied only with New-York city money, which answered well mough on the boat and at the United States Hotel in Boston, but when the stage-man, on reaching Watertown, proceeded to collect his fares from the passengers, it turned out that he would not take New-York. The landlord of a large hotel there was more opposed to touching such stuff than the driver, and I only got out of the difficulty by berrowing of an equaintance a sum sufficient for my purposes. Again, on a subsequent day, I went down to Boston, and eing commissioned to make a small purchase of dry goods loffered to the keeper of a fashionable store in Washington street, a New-York city bank bill, which he utterly refused to take, whereupon I repaired to State street and was shaved If the rate of one per cent, on a note issued by as good a ank as there is in Wall street. Yours. E. C. G.

How A Specie Currency Works .- The benefits of a c currency are strikingly illustrated by a fact which the following letter to a merchant in this city discloses.

If this be so, does it ust present itself to every householder in a most favorable light? Will not the success of the enterprise contribute largely to the convenience of every family, and every one who walks the streets at evening?
